

It's not just children who can be at risk.

It's the social workers who are sent to investigate and evaluate those risks.
And, as if that's not bad enough,
it's you too.

Because, sad to say, most social workers aren't trained to penetrate the webs of deceit that enmesh such children. So, when investigations fail, you may also have to accept some of the blame - however unfair that is - because you made the hiring and training decisions.

But this is where you should be talking to Servoca Dream. Because we use highly-experienced former policemen for our clients' child protection investigations. They're reliable, they're thorough, their discretion and integrity is assured, and they're not easily misled.

Our level of professionalism is why the Welsh Assembly has hired us to investigate child protection allegations in every school under their jurisdiction. So, as a client, you'll be in good company!
